Mum reunited with medics who helped deliver baby in kitchen

I can't thank 999 duo enough

Exclusive by Nicholas Carding

A mother who lost five litres of blood during an unexpected home birth has thanked quick-thinking ambulance staff who helped deliver her baby.

Hannah Olive-Jones and her husband Si, of Brightwell Road, Norwich, had planned for their first child to be born in hospital.

But little baby Jupiter had other ideas, and sent Mrs Olive-Jones into labour in the middle of the night. East of England Ambulance Service Trust (EEAST) crew Kevin Rudd and James Tuddenham
